The Halo/1972

St. Paul's Episcopal Day School

Volume 2

Mobile, Alabama

Beverly Bell Co-Editor

Kathy Miller Co-Editor

Mrs. Margaret Ellis Advisor

A halo is described in the dictionary as a "circle of light, appearing to surround a luminous body." Our yearbook is called "The Halo" because it features the students of St. Paul's School, who are indeed "its shining light."

A further definition of halo is "the glory investing an object idealized by sentiment." The glory that was ours in the 1971-72 school year will not be fully realized nor appreciated until time has further mellowed it.

We hope within these pages we have recorded some of the sweetness, some of the sadness, some of the sentiment, and some of the success that was the year 1972.

The first team competition between St. Paul's School and any other team was played by our girls' volleyball team on October 8, 1969 when they met St. Ignatius. The girls' volleyball team posted the first team victory in the school's history when they defeated J. T. Wright's on October 21, 1969. Since then our volleyball teams have won over half their games and have represented our school in city and district tournaments.

Features . . .

The Students at St. Paul's

Who Do Things . . .

and Who Make Things Happen . . .

Some of these people are outgoing personalities whom everyone knows. Some are quiet, but they get things done.

Some play football, basketball, or volleyball for our school teams. Some are cheerleaders or student government representatives. Some excel in swimming, music, photography, or ballet. Several have already made their debut in civic theater productions. Some have won awards for science fairs. Some have written, edited, and assembled your school newspaper and this yearbook. Many of these featured are honor roll students; but others are not, still they never stop trying. Some are simply there when you need a friend or someone who understands.

In one way or another the following students have shown themselves to be responsible, dependable, of a good attitude, willing to cooperate, and of a friendly and cheerful nature most of the time. There are others and we wish we could feature them all. These students, featured in 1972 are making their places in academics, athletics, citizenship, dramatics, journalism, other achievement, and leadership.

The world is going to be a better place because of the things these students are doing now; and because of the things they will do in the future.
